My ever adored Giuseppe;

Am sending you this postal card to let you have our news, in the hope that you be enjoying good health.

The person, whom we were looking for, has not returned as yet, but will certainly be in New York within a few days.

Many kisses.

Your loving wife

Lina Morello

Dear brother; we are all well here, and hope to hear the same from you.

Have courage, for we trust that before long will be able to see one another personally.

Your affectionate brother

New York May 22nd, 1913.

Dearest brother;

We have received your most welcome letter, and understand the reasons, for which you didn't write. I sent you a postal card, with which I explained you how we were not satisfied of the interview with those persons.

For Saturday we have a date with the same persons, and I believe that they will decide when to come and see you. However, I think that some one of our family will leave for the South soon, and you will receive a visit, which you are not looking for. Then you will be informed about what we are doing, and that we do not deem prudent to write.

Anyhow, you do not have to worry, for these are affairs, which must be dealt with by us, and we know what we are doing. But I can assure you that we are on the good road, hope that success be ours, and that you will be there for months and not for years.

We have great faith on the Blessed Virgin of Mount Carmel, and trust that next July, when Her celebrations will take place, our days will improve and be consoling for us.

Try your best to bear the misfortunes, and receive many regards from all the friends and relatives, while mother sends you the benediction, and all the family give you many affectionate kisses.

Your loving sister

My dear Giuseppe;

I inform you that I went to see uncle according to the engagement, which we had previously taken, and he assured me that last Monday they had the planned interview, and spoke all together about the well known affair. He told me everything, but didn't decide yet as to the time of the visit to you, for they want to finish the work here first. It is certain that you will receive the visit next June, and uncle says that is not necessary to inform you about what they are doing.

Giving you many kisses, I remain

Dear son; we are all well here, and hope to hear the same from you. I recommend you to keep up your courage, and be sure that every thing is going along all right here. I have faith in God that your innocence will soon come out flourishing.

Have my benediction, and believe me

Letter received for the prisoner, Giuseppe Merello, from his wife, Lina Merello.

(T/P.)

New York June 5th, 1913.

My dearest Giuseppe;

Your letter has been received and the contents noted. We are all well here, and hope that you be the same.

You are complaining that with my letters I do not give you the answer, which you are looking for; but what can I do? Don Peppino's cousin warned me not to write you what they are doing for your relief.

You will be informed about everything, when he and some body of the family will call on you. But the trip has not been decided upon, as many more things must be ascertained before the final decision.

Doubting that it would be too long for you to wait, I think to send one of your brothers at ~~xxxxxx~~ an early date, so that you may feel a little easier, and as soon as I will have decided upon the day I will notify you.

The friend of Don Peppino's cousin received me and our children very courteously, and spoke kind words with Angelina and Carmelina, promising to do all he can and aid you in your unfortunate case.

I recommend you not to worry and to keep up your courage, assuring you that everything is going along all right here.

Many regard from compser Angelo, Fortunato and Don Peppino's uncle along with all the friends and relatives, while the children and I give you many affectionate kisses.

Your loving wife

Lina Merello
